

Why Automate Time and Attendance Management?

NETHRIS^{MD}

The ability to manage the time worked by each employee and control attendance and absences are the cornerstone of ensuring company productivity.

Automating time and attendance management allows you to improve your productivity and operational efficiency. Here are some good reasons to automate time and attendance management...

- Time saving. Data entry related to employee timetables is decentralized and done by employees or managers (supervisor, manager, etc.). As such, data collection is automatically simplified;
- Consistency. Automation of time and attendance management means automatic and consistent application of company policies, thereby eliminating any source of conflict with your employees;
- Monitoring and control. Control mechanisms specific to the time and attendance management automation ensure easy monitoring of the various steps of the data collection process;
- Access to data. Current and previous data related to employee timetables is centralized, enabling to extract maximum information and facilitating decision-making;
- Precision. Decentralizing the entry of worked hours significantly reduces the time typically dedicated to payroll preparation as well as the risk of error normally associated with manual entry.
